Defence of the Champions Blows Up

The Phillies smashed the Pirates yesterday, while the Giants were playing rings around the once crack Cubs, making the Giants and Pirates a tie for second place. The Reds won a fifteen inning slugging game from the Bostons, and the Cubs tumbled back into the second division. The Cardinals defeated the Brooklyns again and moved up to a tie for sixth place with the Rustiers. The results:

NEW YORK (N. L.), 11; CHICAGO (N. L.), 1. There was a barbecue, a bearbecue fact, at American League Park yesterda The Giants gourmandized on Cub mea When the feast was over a weary and di-figured pack of Bruins dragged themselve to the clubhouse. The latter were cuffed and manhandled scandalously by the Giants. They were outclassed. The Giants played a slashing game and the Cubs a weak, regged and coloriess game. The Cubs may be a better ball team than they have looked to be here: there may be sufficient left in them to save them from being ordinary, but on the two games they have played here they are great only in memory. They are playing as if shorn of all their strength.

Wiltse went through the game in effective form from first to last. Recent symptoms displayed by him of inability to go at top speed for nine innings were conspicuous by their absence. He didn't stumble at any time, pitching a game of evenly dis-tributed excellence and having good contrel. He had good support too, fine sup-port. The Giants landed a hard blow on the ursine jaw in the first round and the Oubs were on the defensive, backing up and stalling for the rest of the game.

Once upon a time there lived an ogre named Pflester, who used to catch Giante, rope them and brand them and eat them alive. them and brand them and eat them alive. There were Cubs in those days. Yesterday the curves of the ex-Glant killer were assessinated by his whilom victims and the left hander driven from the rostrum in the third inning. Toney came in, and the change from left to right handed pitching didn't check the Glants. The euphonious ring of base hits continued uninterrupted. Each pitcher suffered an inning in which his support exploded. Spectators remarked that never before had they seen demoralization staking through the Chicago ranks. tion stalking through the Chicago ranks like that. Johnny Evers may be here today to brace up the team, but it will take a big brace to stop the stampede.

The Cubs dwindled away one, two, three in the first inning, but for the Giants Devore Batted for Burns in the first inning, but for the Giants Devore Batted for Curtis in the fifteenth inning.

it. Devore streaked to second on the error and scored when L. Doyle hit to the fence for a triple, which might have been reduced to a double if Sheckard had picked it up cleanly.

The Cubs went astray again in the seventh. Becker walked and was forced by Merkle Bridwell singled, a difficult bounder to J. Doyle. Devlin shot a safe liner to right en route to Schulte. Schulte had a mental picture of himself fielding the ball in and killing a run at the plate, but was painfully disillusioned. The ball went through his legs. Merkle and Bridwell scored and Devlin galloped to third from there he tailled on Meyers's out at first. Tinker missed Wiltse's grounder, but Devore compassionately forced Wiltse at second.

After Hofman's homer only one Chicagoan reached first base. Merkle's muff of a throw gave Tinker a life in the seventh. That was the only New York error. -First Defeat for Mullin. The Highlanders took a grip on themselves yes.erday, beat the Detroits and broke the Tigers' long winning streak. PRINCETON BATTERS BUSY.

Tigers' runs

Princeton took the lead by scoring twice in the opening inning, on singles by Bard and White and Prescott's three bagger to deep right field. Brown tied the game up in the fifth, when Witherow walked and scored on Reilly's triple, the latter coming in a minute later when Dukette singled. Greenbaum cut short the rally, however, by retiring the next two batsmen. Princeton sowed the game up in its half of the same inning, when three scratch hits in succession followed by Capt. White's single and Sterrett's out brought in three runs.
